The little door

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Every garden holds a door to somewhere.

The little door

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She

crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.

Mira found the little door at the edge of the garden. It was no taller than a teacup, painted the green of new leaves. She crouched beside it and listened. On the other side, someone was humming a song she almost remembered.